

Chapter 39

Plate Numbers 29000-29999

Plate number 29000 was assigned to the 5c Erie Canal offset plate in February, 1967 and plate number 29999 was assigned to the 1968 6c Christmas stamp (blue plate number) in May, 1968. This was a momentous section for collectors with 1000 plate numbers assigned in just 15 months. The postage rates again increased, this time to 6c on January 7, 1968. More stamps appeared in the Prominent Americans series. The 6c Roosevelt was released in a new booklet plate size that made collecting plate numbers very difficult. But the major event for plate number collectors was the introduction of the new 9 color Huck press.

The Liberty series had 31 plates assigned and 23 plates put to press. The four 1c Jackson coil plates are tough to find. The 1963 5c Washington booklet had 11 plates to press and some of these last plates are quite scarce.

The Prominent Americans series was in control of definitives. The sheet plate numbers present no problems to collectors. The 432 subject coil plates are quite difficult as usual. The rate change resulted in booklet panes containing 8 stamps per pane. The BEP designed a 320 subject booklet plate with the plate numbers positioned so that the top plate numbers were above the booklet pane tab and the bottom plate numbers were below the bottom stamps of the pane. The production trimming resulted in almost none of these plates being found. Any examples found are either production paper foldovers or miscuttings showing only a tiny percentage of the plate number. These plate numbers are rarities. Since the only examples ever found were due to paper foldovers or large miscuttings, I consider these plates to be unavailable as are the commemorative offset plate numbers. Only one of the forty-six 320 subject booklet plates sent to press has been found. 310 Prominent Americans plates went to press with 112 unreported.

The Prominent Americans series saw the introduction of the ZIP and MAIL EARLY marginal markings starting around plate 29600.

The Giori press was used to produce the new 6c flag definitive stamp. 40 plates went to press and finding examples of all 40 is not too difficult even though the Giori plates sometimes printed relatively small numbers of impressions.

Collectors had been aware of experiments with the new 9 color Huck press for many months. The BEP warned that this press was a radical departure from what collectors had been experiencing with plate numbers. This press required 30 small plates per printing cylinder and there could be from 1 to 3 printing cylinders used. This meant that just the initial press setup using the 3 printing stations could result in a theoretical 27,000 combinations of plate numbers! The post office solicited comments from collectors about the plate numbers. These numbers could be trimmed or left on the stamps. I wrote many letters in support of leaving the plate numbers on the printed panes. Most collectors wanted the plate numbers and the post office announced that the plate numbers would appear on the stamp panes. I was first in line at my post office on November 2, 1968 when the new Christmas stamp went on sale. I bought as many plate strips as the clerk would allow and was stunned to see 8 plate numbers spaced along the sheet margin. Plate number collectors seemed to be at a loss on how to collect this stamp. It was simple for me, I wanted just one copy of each plate number, but the matched set collectors did not know what to do. It was readily apparent that collecting all combinations and obtaining matched sets would be impossible. Some collectors just bought as many strips as possible. Many of the plate numbers were tough to find and one, blue plate 29923, is unreported. This stamp was probably the first in a series of events that soon drove many collectors from collecting plate numbers in matched sets. There will be more about this press and the 1968 Christmas stamp in the next chapter.

The BEP seemed to have abandoned the practice of multiple passes through the Giori press in favor of the combination offset-intaglio printing method. 91 of the 344 commemorative plates to press were offset plates not available to collectors. The 5c Thomas Eakins stamp was printed by the gravure method by a private printing company. The plates used are numbered in the BEP's postage stamp plate number series. 253 commemorative plates are available to collectors with one unreported. All are easy to find with the exceptions being the 1968 Christmas stamp. 73 plates were used for this stamp in the 29000 section and none are scarce except the unreported 29923, but locating them all is the challenge.

The air mail section was busy with 55 plates to press. 45 are available to collectors since the 10c 50th Anniversary of Air Mail stamp used 10 offset plates. But the new 10c air mail stamp appeared in the new 320 subject booklet format and all 10 plates used are unreported. Two postage due plates rounded out the 29000 section.

The 29000 section saw 774 plates to press with 616 available to collectors which sets a new record low. 61 of these plates are unreported so a high percentage of completion is practically impossible. My personal completion percentage is lower on the 29000 section than on any other section so it could be said that this is the toughest of all the plate number sections and this is due to the booklet and coil plates. I sometimes wonder if these types of difficulties caused a lot of collectors to quit consecutive plate number collecting since so many plate numbers seemed to be unobtainable. As a collector, I found these changes exciting and challenging and I looked forward to the next new event. Actually, if you disregard the booklet and coil plates, the 29000 section is quite easy to collect. The printing advances at the BEP make this a colorful and interesting collection. Perhaps this is part of the appeal of consecutive plate number collecting. We can see the changes unfold as the numbers inch ever upward. We will inch into the next chapter to see what additional havoc the 9 color Huck press has wrought.
